Today's story is very sweet, because Jesus cures a sick little girl on the verge of death, and makes her family, especially her father, so happy when he returns her to her family.

As you know, we're in the Gospel according to St. Mark. St. Mark is my favorite Gospel. Why?

St. Mark explains nothing. In fact, when Jesus talks in St. Mark's Gospel, he doesn't explain anything. We live in a world where we explain everything. We over-explain and over-explain. You get sick of hearing it. But not the Gospel writer St. Mark.

Mark tells stories. Stories are my favorite. And out of the stories comes understanding. And out of the understanding comes something that you never get from explaining things, which is love.

Did you ever notice that?

You can get love out of telling stories, but you can't get love out of explaining things. And I don't know why.

Jairus, the leading figure in the local synagogue in Galilee looks at Jesus and says to him, "My daughter, my daughter," and it's his only child. "My daughter is at the point of death. Please come, please come. Lay your hands upon her, that she might get well and live."

He is in authority and can do anything by his influence, but he can't heal or give life. It is not in human hands. Miracles only God can do. So, he comes to Jesus.

Many people come to Jesus only for miracles. But, he says, come to me every day.

Fr. Antony Joseph
