A little child was playing one day with a very valuable vase. All of a sudden, he put his hand into it and could not withdraw it. His dad, too, tried his best, but all in vain. They were thinking of breaking the vase when the father said, “Now, my son, make one more try. Open your hand and hold your fingers out straight as you see me doing, and then pull.” To the Dad’s astonishment the little fellow said, “Oh no, Dad. I couldn’t put my fingers out like that, because if I did, I would drop my pennies that I have in my hand.

Many of us are like that little boy, so busy holding on to the worthless pennies of the world that we cannot accept liberation. The rich young man in today’s gospel is just another example. He wants eternal life but will not let go “the peanuts” of riches.

In life, we think that we possess things and power. But these things often possess us, and we become the prisoners of our possessions. The first reading advises us to use the God-given virtue of prudence and to seek true wisdom in preference to vanishing realities like riches or political and social influence.

There is another message that we are called to be sure of. When we detach ourselves from possessions in the name of Jesus, we will receive it in hundred times. So, possessions in itself are not bad but the way we hold on to them makes it evil. Being rich is not a fault but refusing to give up before God is fatal to eternal destruction.

Hold possessions and share them for the glory of God.

Fr. Antony Joseph
